

Federal Judge Blocks New York City's School COVID-19 Vaccine Mandate

By Zachary Stieber

September 25, 2021 Updated: September 25, 2021

"Our current vax-or-test mandate remains in effect and we're seeking speedy resolution by the Circuit Court next week. Over 82 percent of DOE employees have been vaccinated and we continue to urge all employees to get their shot by Sept. 27," the agency added.

The city requires all school staff to be vaccinated or exempted by midnight on Sept. 27. The union, United Federation of Teachers (UFT) said on Sept. 24 that 90-95 percent of teachers have received the vaccine. That would leave about 4,000-8,000 unvaccinated, including those who have asked for the exemption.

Commander in US Navy warns mandatory vaccination comprises national security threat

In a memorandum released Monday, Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin announced intentions to require COVID-19 vaccination for all servicemembers by mid-September or immediately, should any COVID vaccines clear FDA approval. Servicemen refusing to submit to the vaccine will potentially face court martial, prison time, and even dishonorable discharge.

Revolver summarized Furman's key points:

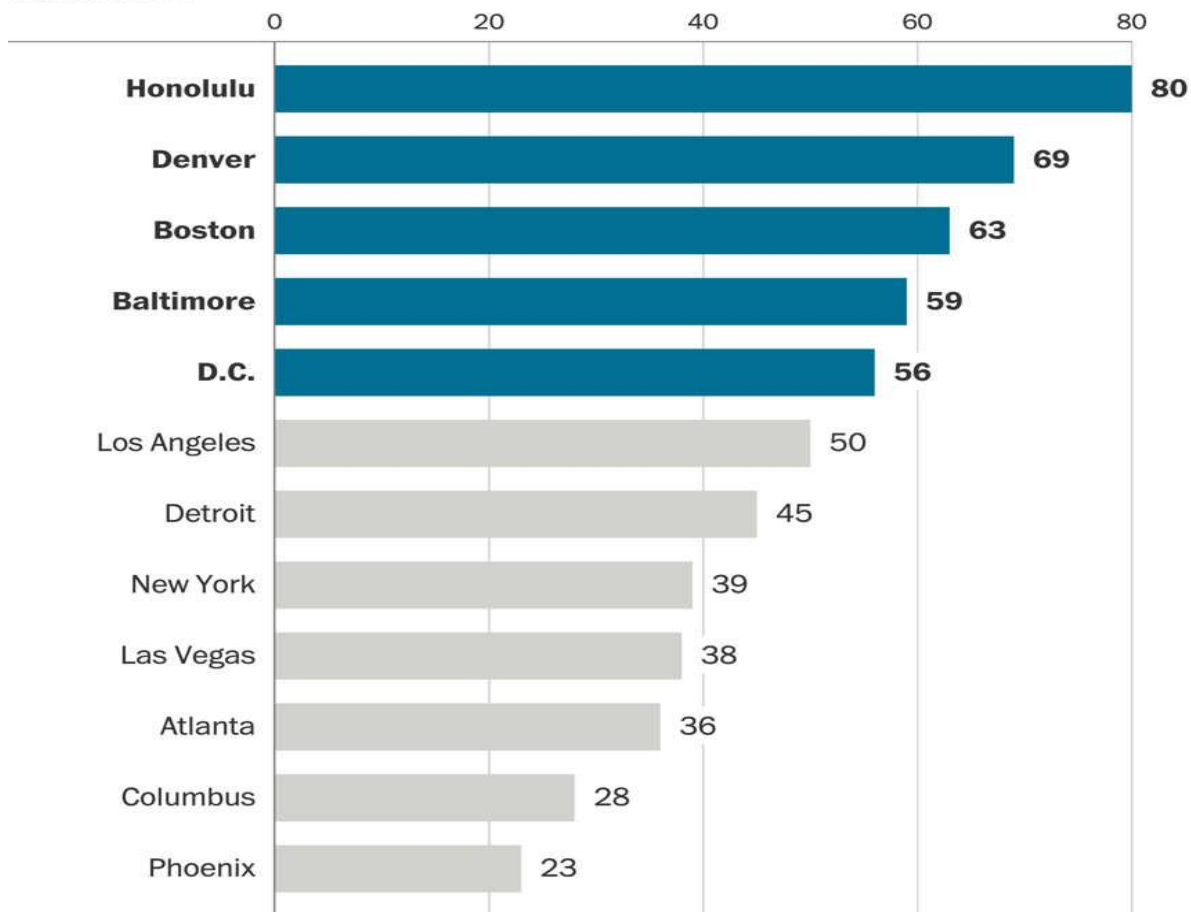

- The average member of the U.S. military is young and in excellent physical fitness, two categories that are nearly immune to the dangers of COVID. So far, only 24 people out of 2.2 million military personnel have died of COVID-19, a rate of less than one per 91,000.
- There is reason to believe severe or even fatal side-effects from existing COVID-19 vaccines are more common than reported, and could even prove deadlier to otherwise-healthy servicemen than COVID-19.
- There is also the outlier possibility that mRNA vaccines (the kind used by the Moderna and Pfizer shots) may have unanticipated negative effects on the immune systems of recipients.
- Currently, the U.S. military has proven completely capable of weathering COVID-19 without any loss of effectiveness, so forcibly making the entire service a test case for a novel type of vaccine is a pointless risk.

Police departments see low levels of vaccination, raising concerns about public safety

Percent of officers with at least one dose at some of the nation's largest police departments.

Of more than 40 departments contacted by The Washington Post, only those highlighted reported rates higher than the general public. Some departments did not provide data distinguishing between first and second doses, and officials in some cities said officers may have gotten shots outside official channels. Many departments were not tracking immunization of their officers.

The Spartacus letter \(Part 1 and Part 2\) - written by Dr. Robert Warren September 30, 2021

Vaccines and Treatments

In Part 1 of my breakdown of the Spartacus Letter, I posted verbatim the description of what COVID 19 actually is. The authors of the Letter make the case that COVID 19 is a blood disease, not a lung disease, and that pneumonia is a secondary issue. The authors also make the case that COVID 19 can present itself in many different ways in many different parts of the body.

In Part 2 it is my breakdown of the Spartacus Letter, I will post relevant sections of the Letter that deal with concerns over vaccinations and treatments. To me, the bottom line is if you are symptomatic in any strange way, get tested immediately. Time is not your friend and hospitalization is all too often deadly. Delay can leave patients with long term physical problems.
